North Hollywood Residents Eligible for Guaranteed Income

North Hollywood families living under the federal poverty level are now eligible to apply to receive $1000 in monthly cash payments, thanks to a new guaranteed income initiative from the City of Los Angeles. On Friday, the city opened applications for its new "Basic Income Guaranteed: Los Angeles Economic Assistance Pilot" (BIG: LEAP), a guaranteed basic income program that will provide a total of almost $40 million to up to 3,200 Angelenos. The families who receive the funds will be chosen randomly. The program, sponsored by 9th District Councilmember Curren Price, will be funded by taxpayers and money from individual Council district offices. The city is also paying about $4 million for analysts to study the efficacy of the program. Mayor Garcetti initially said it would be paid for with federal funds, but that turned out not to be possible. The program will provide $1000 in no-strings-attached payments for 12 months. To qualify, applicants must live in the City of Los Angeles; be at least 18 years old; have at least one dependent child or be pregnant; experienced a medical or economic hardship related to COVID-19; and have an income level at or below the federal poverty line, which falls at $26,500 a year pre-tax for a family of four. Applicants can check their eligibility online.

Families have from Friday until Sunday, Nov. 7 at 11:59 p.m. People can apply online, or attend neighborhood hub events set up through the city to help people apply.
